

DEMOCRATIC STATE COM.

ELECT NEW OFFICERS FOR THE COMING CAMPAIGN.

Attorney General Palmer Endorsed for the Presidency—Resolutions Adopted.

The Democratic State Committee met in session at the Penn-Harris, Harrisburg, on last Thursday, June 10. Adams county was represented by the new state committeeman, Jacob I. Heretier. New officers were elected, Bruce F. Sterling, of Uniontown, being named by a unanimous vote for chairman, and Sedgwick Kistler, of Lockhaven, for treasurer for the coming year. Parker Skinner, of Chambersburg, was made division leader of the fifth district, to which Adams county belongs. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolutions.

The Democratic party of Pennsylvania, as represented by its State Committee duly elected by the Democratic voters, reaffirms its belief in the principles of popular government as enunciated by Thomas Jefferson and since his time steadfastly pursued and supported by the great leaders of the party.

We cordially endorse the national Democratic Administration and heartily approve and commend its unsurpassed record of achievement, in both foreign and domestic affairs, under the incomparable leadership of Woodrow Wilson, whom it has been the proud privilege of the Pennsylvania Democracy to support from his entrance upon the national political stage.

We commend the splendid support given the President in all his labors by the Democratic representatives in Congress from Pennsylvania, all of whom have been steadfast in their adherence to the principles and traditions of the party and constant in their efforts for the country's welfare. Under his leadership, the Democratic party has definitely refuted all the old slanders which have been aimed against it and has shown itself a party of constructive ideas, executive capacity, broad vision and deepest sympathy for the interests of all the people of the nation.

Under the first Wilson administration, more beneficial legislation was enacted by the Congress and approved by the President than during any forty years of Republican party control of national affairs. In the second term, the greatest war in recorded history was speedily fought to a victorious conclusion. In its prosecution under the leadership of the President, we not only sustained the honor and guarded the life of the nation, but we showed that broad spirit of humanity in our aims, purposes and methods which is necessary to continued freedom.

We established the authority of democracy over autocracy commanded respect everywhere for human rights and built up and maintained a worldwide desire for perpetual peace on earth.

Credit to People.

These things were done by the American people and to them the credit goes, but it is no reflection upon the patriotism of all who supported the war for us to call attention to the fact that they were done by the people under a Democratic administration led by the greatest Democrat since Jefferson, and to that party and its matchless leader history will accord the honor which their splendid achievements have earned.

The Democratic party faces the quadrennial period of accounting to the people for its stewardship with the confidence born of the consciousness of duty well performed. It has built a record of achievement in domestic affairs which entitles it to the gratitude of the Republic. It has accomplished things on the broader field of foreign affairs which will call forth in all the years to come the grateful acknowledgment of a world made happier and safer because of American courage and efficiency under the leadership of our party.

Upon that record we shall stand. We shall ask the people of the nation to compare it with the record of negation, opposition, criticism and failure on the part of the Republican party through the same period. By that comparison, the people will be able to judge the value of pledges for the future.

We passed a tariff law in accord with the pledge of the party, built upon the principle of fair competition which American industry, self-respecting and courageous, is willing and able to meet and under which as never before the American producer has successfully entered the markets of the world and established a great balance of trade in his favor. We created a non-partisan tariff commission to take the place of a political board created by the Payne tariff law to maintain protection for the special interests and which, upon the first showing of its own independence, was flouted and repudiated by the very party which created it.

Provided Income Tax.

Upon coming into power in the Federal Government, we made good the long promise to amend the Constitution to provide for an income tax, and under that amendment taxes have been levied upon the income of idle wealth and the excess profits of corporations and individuals who, without such a check, would have scandalized the nation with the enormous profits made in the unusual conditions of war time.

We have made good as the friend of labor. It was not till a Democratic majority appeared in the House of Representatives that the appeal of labor for a special department of the Government to guard its interests was heard and answered, and the first working man, to sit at the council table of the President of the United States as the Secretary of Labor is a distinguished Pennsylvania Democrat, William B. Wilson. We passed a workmen's compensation law, extended the eight-hour day, created a Children's Bureau and stopped the exploitation of children in labor.

We perfected the system of countrywide rural delivery of mails, put the farmer at the city's gate by the parcels post, inaugurated the system of Federal aid for building highways, gave the farmer a savings bank in every post office and established a rural credit system with the Federal Farm Loan Banks as a guaranty of proper financial support to agriculture in the future.

Federal Reserve System.

We relegated the scrap heap of political and economic blunders that archaic and inadequate system of finance whose inequities and failures the Republican party had condoned for forty years, and built upon its ruins the greatest banking structure ever erected by mortal man; for the Federal Reserve system is to-day the model of the entire financial world, upon which no political party, however jealous of our achievement, will ever dare to lay its impious hand.

When the time came for America to arm and send her sons into the world's war for civilization, she was ready to do her part because of these splendid reforms enacted under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson in response to the Democratic pledges to the country, reform which made it possible to quickly mobilize the great supporting forces from capital in finance and industry, from the labor in mill and factory, and from the soil on farm and garden patch. The new system of taxation, the new system of finance, the new consideration for labor and the new support to the farmer, all adopted while the Democratic party was in power, became the keystones of the Nation's preparedness to enter the great conflict. Without them, America would have failed. With them, the greatest victory in the world's history was achieved.

The Republican party would now rob the nation and the world of the fruits of that victory and deny the world's yearning for everlasting peace. The Democratic party of Pennsylvania favors a league of nations as the most likely method of maintaining the peace of the world and putting an end to the tremendous burdens of great military and naval establishments.

We voice our pride in the achievement of the President when, as representative of this people at Paris, he secured the adoption of a covenant of a league of nations and as treaty of peace in strict accord with the American ideal and American purpose. The peace that he wrote at Paris is the peace for which millions of our bravest fought and thousands died. It is a peace which has been concurred in by twenty-seven nations of the world.

Senate is condemned.

We condemn the Republican Senate for its refusal to ratify the treaty allowing partisan envy and personal hatred to block the way to peace and renewed prosperity in the world. We condemn the action of the Congress for its attempt, in the Knox resolution, to desert the Allies beside whom we fought and make a separate peace with Germany. The proposal to repeal the declaration of war and after that to go to Germany and ask for new terms of peace, constitutes an apologetic surrender of everything we fought for.

We condemn the Senate of the United States for refusing to give the world peace upon any terms. We insist that the war should be brought to a final end so that the unrest and discontent throughout the world may be drowned by the happy hum of industry actively engaged in rebuilding the shattered economic structure, and this can only be done by prompt ratification of the treaty of peace without reservations which destroy or nullify its splendid plan and purpose.

The Republican party came back into power in the Congress over a year ago with lavish promises for the comprehensive solution of all the after-war problems, but not a single act of major importance designed for that purpose has been passed so far. The Republican party has been loud in promise and silent in performance. Its leaders demanded a special session of Congress, which was called by the President, but the session has now closed, barren and impotent. Every pledge it now makes is answered by its failure in performance when the opportunity was at hand.

In August of last year, when serious industrial disturbance was apparently resulting from the cost of living, the President addressed the Congress in a message calling attention to the urgent necessity of legislation to meet the situation. While the fundamental and underlying cause of the high prices has admittedly been an economic condition worldwide in its scope, resulting largely from a decreased production of goods which support life and a greatly expanded credit currency growing out of the necessity of financing the war, there have been apparent evils partly responsible for high prices which could have been effectually checked by rigid enforcement of such laws as the President earnestly urged upon the Congress.

Ignore Wilson Requests.

He asked that the so-called Lever food control law be amended to include wearing apparel among the necessities of life whose prices that law was intended to guard, and that the law should be extended for a reasonable period beyond the making of peace, at which time under its own terms it would become inoperative. After nearly three months of wrangling, the two houses finally agreed upon an amendment which brought wearing apparel within its terms and applied a penalty to profiteering, but ignored the recommendation to prolong the life of the law.

He asked also that the Congress pass a law regulating cold storage by limiting the time during which goods may be kept in storage, by prescribing methods of disposing of them if kept beyond the permitted period, and to require that goods released from storage shall in all cases bear the date of their receipt and have plainly marked upon each package intended for inter-state shipment the selling or market price at which it went into storage. By this means, the powerful weapon of publicity would have been employed to permit the purchaser to know that toll of profits was being taken between the producer and the consumer. That recommendation has been ignored.

He urged, further, that all goods designed for inter-state commerce should, in every case where there form or package makes it possible, be plainly marked with the price at which they left the producer. This would have afforded the public a measure of self-protection of incalculable value against gougers. That recommendation has been ignored.

He urged a law requiring the Federal licensing of all corporations engaged in interstate commerce and embodying in the license, or in the conditions under which it is to be issued, regulations designed to secure competitive selling and prevent unconscionable profits in the method of marketing. That recommendation has been ignored.

Fighting the Profiteers.

He asked, also, that the bill proposed by the Capital Issues Committee, designed to stop speculation and prevent fraudulent methods of promotion, by which our people are annually fleeced of many millions of hard earned money, should promptly be made a law. That recommendation has been ignored.

He asked that agencies of the Government, which had performed indispensable service in supplying the public with information regarding the supply of commodities and the methods of price fixing by dealers, be supplied with funds by which the public might be armed with that information so necessary and helpful in their own defense in meeting the profiteer. That recommendation has been ignored.

In May, 1919, the President urged upon the Congress the necessity for legislation which would support the great chemical industry, which was built up in the United States during the war at a time when German dyestuffs were not imported. The American patents in the chemical industry, owned by the Germans, were taken over by this country under the Trading-with-the-Enemy Act and distributed under a plan which made certain the development of the chemical industry in a way to make us entirely independent hereafter of every country in the world. To make this plan secure after the war, when commerce began to flow, it was necessary that some restrictions be placed for a time upon the ruinous competition with which Germany planned to destroy the industry in this country. That recommendation has been ignored.

Realizing the unusually heavy burdens of taxation which the war had placed upon the people, the President very promptly after the armistice, when it became apparent that the expense of the war could be funded in a way that would equalize the burden amongst the present and future generations, urged the Congress to reduce the heavy taxes which the war made necessary. That recommendation has been ignored.

Fair Deal to Labor.

In view of this abdication of all responsibility by the Congress because dominated by a political party hostile to the Administration, the wonder is not that we have done so little but that we have accomplished so much involving the afterwar problems.

The Democratic party believes in fair dealing in the relations between employers and employees and a fearless, as well as a just attitude by the Government toward both. It is not within the lawful power of the Government to discriminate between classes of labor, nor to concede to any body of citizens privileges which are not granted to others of equal merit. Service rendered by labor and also by capital should be adequately and justly compensated, but neither class should at any time in any cir-

Starnat, former pastor of the Abbottstown Lutheran Church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Reinecker returned to the home of her parents, where a wedding supper and reception were held. For the present they will reside at her home.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

The Republican National Convention last Saturday nominated United States Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, for President and Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, for Vice President. The work of the convention has been a bitter disappointment, but it is any more than a reaping as that party has been sowing, sowing national dishonor internationally, sowing a stand-pat conservatism, doing nothing, without reconstructive vision and the result had to be what it turned out to be. Hear the following four judgments of the Republican ticket.

The New York Times, the leading newspaper of America, independent, but a strong supporter of President Wilson and the Treaty of Peace and League of Nations, says:

"Upon a platform that has produced general dissatisfaction, the Chicago convention presents a candidate whose nomination will be received with astonishment and dismay by the party whose suffrage he invites. Warren G. Harding is a very respectable Ohio politician of the second class. He has never been a leader of men or a director of policies. For years a protégé of Foraker, he rose to a subordinate office by favor of 'Boss' Cox of Cincinnati. Beaten by Judson Harmon in the contest for the Governorship in 1910, he has never shown independent strength in his own State save when he was named for Senator in 1914, having a majority of a little more than 100,000 over his Democratic competitor; and outside of Ohio he has only such strength as he now derives from his place at the head of the Republican ticket. Senator Harding's record at Washington has been faint and colorless. He has an undistinguished and indistinguishable unit in the rank of Republican Senators who obediently follow Mr. Lodge in the twistings and turnings of that statesman's foray upon the Treaty and the Covenant."

The New York Tribune, leading Republican newspaper, while declaring it will support the ticket says:

"Republicans are still ungrateful. Leonard Wood, who is one of the great men of America and destined to live in history, has been defeated for a Presidential nomination by a group of politicians just as Theodore Roosevelt was four years ago, and more recently Clemenceau was denied the President of France. We had hoped that a man of undoubted courage, vision and executive ability would be chosen, but we have instead Warren Gamaliel Harding, one of the Senate Group which controlled the convention. It would be hypocritical for the Tribune to pretend that it is satisfied with this result."

The New York Evening Post, independent and progressive newspaper says:

"The nomination of Senator Harding is an affront to the intelligence and the conscience of the American people. In making it, the Republican party has put its worst foot forward. The public was prepared for a surprise at Chicago, but not for so disgraceable a surprise. Few observers expected the convention to nominate the best candidate presented to it, but nobody supposed that it would choose the worst. As the convention assembled, Senator Harding was scarcely spoken of, the reason being that his candidacy was generally regarded as hopeless. None of the long list of names that have figured in the discussion of the nomination had been received with wider or more decided disapproval than his. He was the impossible candidate par excellence. * * * It is too early to say that the Democrats deserve to win in November, but we have no hesitation in saying that the Republicans richly deserve to lose."

The New York World, Democratic, says:

"With a standpat candidate and a standpat platform the Republican party has undertaken to turn the political clock back to 1900. Senator Harding may be elected President of the United States, but he will never be President of the U. S. except in name. In the event of a Republican victory next November the Executive power will be in the hands of the Penroses, Lodges, the Brandeegs, the Watsons and the other Old Guard Senators who bossed the Chicago Convention and made it the servile creature of their political desires."

William C. Tyson, of Guernsey, and John E. Baker, when released after the 9th ballot by Governor Sproul, voted on 10th ballot for Gen. Wood.

When request was made to make nomination of Harding unanimous, Wisconsin refused.

DEMOCRATIC STATE COM.

circumstances take action that will jeopardize the public welfare.

Resort to strikes or lockouts endanger the health or lives of the people are deplorable devices for determining disputes and methods should be contrived to compose all disagreements of labor and capital on a basis that will insure the satisfactory employment of both, in the industrial pursuits of the country. Only in this way may labor ever be content and the reasonable security of capital assured.

The Democratic party has always believed in a simple economical Government, and whereas it justifies the vast expenditures made during the World War as necessary for a speedy determination of the issue, it now demands that there shall be in the administration of the Government a prompt return to frugal expenditures upon a practical business basis, with rigid economy as the predicate of every dollar taken in and paid out by the Treasury.

Moreover, the Democratic party believes in property rights and individual initiative. In the upturned conditions and the extraordinary tension of the war period affairs of private citizens became, to a certain extent, the momentary concern of the entire public and had to be adjusted by public necessity. But interference with the private rights of its citizens should not be permitted to become an established practice of the Government.

Costly G. O. P. Probes.

Elected upon specific promises to curtail expenditures and to bring the country back to a status of economy, the Republican party in Congress has wasted time and energy for more than a year in vain and extravagant investigations, costing two millions of dollars, revealing nothing beyond the incapacity of Republican politicians to cope with the gravest problems. It has merely busied itself in making a pre-election record of pretended thrift which has no substantial existence in fact, but is intended momentarily to deceive the American people.

ple. It has raged against profiteers and the high cost of living, but has done nothing to make the former afraid or to bring the latter within limitations.

The Federal Government should treat with the utmost generosity every disabled soldier of the World War, whether his disability be due to wounds received in action or to health impaired in service, and the Government's tenderest concern and richest bounty must always be extended toward the dependents of the brave men who died in line of duty.

The Democratic administration wisely established a war risk insurance at unprecedentedly low rates, and through the medium of which compensation to soldiers injured in service is readily adjusted and hospital facilities for those whose health is impaired are abundantly afforded. We warmly commend this bureau of the Government to the fostering care of the Congress and bespeak for it generous aid rather than churlish criticism.

Cost of Distribution.

We favor the adoption of all practical methods to bring the producer and consumer closer together, for beyond question a large factor in the high prices now ruling for the necessities of life is the cost of distribution and the toll taken by various handlers of and speculators in necessary commodities between production and consumption. The rural route service of the Post Office Department, by means of the motor drawn vehicle, ought to be developed and extended. In the comparatively few sections of the country where experiments have been made with this method of bringing the product of the farm to the table of the consumer, it has demonstrated its feasibility.

The channels of communication and distribution should be made the same as near as possible. If farmers by co-operative associations should get in ready touch with similar associations of consumers living in large centers of population, so that at regular periods the product of the farm with little handling could be delivered through the postal service at the door of the postal patron immense economies to the consumer would result along with increased incentive and consequent profit to the producer. The wide extension of this system would necessarily be followed by better highways. Nothing would serve better to bring the producer and consumer close together than increased facilities for transportation of farm products over improved highways.

We also believe that the time has come, when in the interest of the producer on the farm and the consumer in the centers of population, there should be government regulations of the exchanges dealing in foodstuffs and in securities of corporations whose business has to do with commodities which are known as necessities. The profits of speculation on these exchanges add to the price of foodstuffs where directly traded in, and in the case of shares of stock are ultimately borne by the commodities which enter into the business of the corporation whose stock is the subject of speculation or gambling.

Stock Speculation.

Unmeasured millions of money, which ought to belong to producers or to be saved by consumers, have gone into the insatiable maw of stock speculation. Such commodities and securities should be dealt in under regulations made in the interest of the public and not for the sole benefit of stock speculators, and should be framed for the purpose of lending incentive to increased production and facilitating distribution without unnecessary handling or reselling within the trade, thus insuring fair treatment to the producer and consumer alike.

The World War has demonstrated beyond question that an adequate fleet of merchant vessels should be immediately available in time of war or national emergency for military as well as commercial purposes and as an auxiliary of our navy for the national defense.

The nation with its vast resources and wealth should not be dependent upon any other nation for transportation facilities either in time of war or peace.

It is the policy of the Democratic party to build up and maintain a great and efficient merchant marine under the American flag adequate at all times to meet the requirements of our ocean-borne commerce and to serve as a military and naval auxiliary in times of war or national emergency; and that such merchant marine should be privately owned and operated. To that end we favor the sale as soon as practicable to citizens of the United States of all the merchant vessels heretofore built or now being built for and owned by the United States, at such prices and such terms and conditions as will best carry out the aforesaid policy, and will reasonably assure successful operation of such merchant vessels under the American flag in competition with the merchant fleets of other nations in the world trade.

Welcome Women to Party.

The Democrats in Pennsylvania welcome the prospect of an early participation by the women of the country in the right of suffrage.

We believe as a party, that the advent of the women into politics will mean a new day in the political life of this country and in the administration of governmental affairs.

We request that qualifying legislation be passed in Pennsylvania without delay in order that the right of suffrage may be accorded to the women of our State upon the passage of the suffrage amendment by the requisite number of States.

We commend the course of A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General of the United States, whose courageous enforcement of the law without fear or favor and without passion or prejudice has done so much to maintain the peace and good order of the country necessary to the solution of all the difficult afterwar problems. merciless pursuit of the profiteers, his unflinching opposition to "red" radicalism, his determined action in riding the country of its alien enemies, his even handed enforcement of the law governing industrial disputes, seeking only the public interest without desire to favor or to punish either capital or labor, and his enforced decree against the packers, the influence of which has been strongly felt in stabilizing the price conditions in the necessities of life, making a record service to his country which is a credit to himself and the party of which he is an admitted leader.

In this hour of stress and difficulty when the nation must have strong able and courageous leadership of undivided Americanism and true understanding of American ideals and purposes, we offer to the Democratic party of the nation, as one filling the requirements in marked degree, as its candidate for President, our own Pennsylvania leader, A. Mitchell Palmer.
